Dear Friends and Colleagues:

Welcome to the 2019 conference of the National Collegiate Choral Organization and to the University of Maryland! Your organization has a well-deserved reputation for being committed to innovative and creative programming and to fostering research and professional development in the realm of choral studies. It seems fitting that you are exploring such a diverse range of topics—from Shakespeare to Scandinavia, to choral music by female composers to working with underserved communities—in the shadow of the nation's capital, which is a nexus of cultural influences from around the world that shape and inform our ongoing quest to perfect the experiment of American democracy and the ideals upon which it rests. I trust that the insights gained will contribute meaningfully to national conversations on the health and viability of the arts, including our own efforts here at the University of Maryland School of Music at pursuing engagement, entrepreneurship, and inclusive excellence. These principles are embodied in the stellar achievements of the University of Maryland Chamber Singers, who, along with all of us at the School of Music, are delighted to serve as this year's hosts. I wish you a wonderful conference and hope that you'll have ample opportunity to enjoy the beautiful Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center and the vibrant region that surrounds it.

Sincerely,

Jason Geary

Director of the School of Music

María Guinand

Director, Schola Cantorum de Venezuela

María Guinand is artistic director of Schola Cantorum of Venezuela and conducts choral projects throughout Latin America, Europe, the United States, and Asia. Renowned as an authentic interpreter and trainer of Latin American choral music of the 20th and 21st centuries, she is a recipient of the Helmuth Rilling Preis (2009), the Robert Edler Preis für Chormusik (2000), and the Kulturpreis of the InterNationes Foundation (1998), three of the most distinguished prizes in choral music conducting.

Currently, she conducts two of Venezuela's most prestigious choirs—the Schola Cantorum de Venezuela and the Cantoría Alberto Grau—both of which she has toured extensively and won many awards. Always interested in new choral music, she has been involved in projects such as the premieres, performances, and recordings of Osvaldo Golijov's La Pasión según San Marcos and John Adams' A Flowering Tree.

For over three decades, María Guinand has been the associate conductor and advisor of choral symphonic performances and activities for El Sistema (FESNOJIV), the world-renowned music program in Venezuela. She previously taught in the Master Degree Program for Choral Conductors at the University Simón Bolívar, where she was a professor and conductor for over 30 years.

Damien Sneed

Performer, Composer, Conductor, Educator

Damien Sneed is a pianist, organist, conductor, composer, producer, arranger, and arts educator whose work spans multiple genres. Sneed has worked with jazz, classical, pop, and R&B legends including the late Aretha Franklin, Wynton Marsalis, Jessye Norman, Stevie Wonder, Diana Ross, Ashford & Simpson, Lawrence Brownlee, and many others. The multi-genre recording artist is a recipient of the prestigious Sphinx Medal of Excellence, which is presented annually to emerging Black and Latino leaders in classical music.

Sneed is the founder and artistic director of Chorale Le Chateau, which has gained a global reputation for its vivid interpretations of vocal literature, from Renaissance period pieces to art songs to jazz, spirituals, gospel, and avant-garde contemporary music. He is featured on the recording of Wynton Marsalis' Abyssinian Mass as a conductor, with Marsalis, the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra, and Chorale Le Chateau.

Georgia State University Singers

Deanna Joseph

Dr. Deanna Joseph is associate professor of music and director of choral activities at the Georgia State University School of Music where she conducts the University Singers and leads the master's program in choral conducting. In 2018, she received GSU's Alumni Distinguished Professorship Award and in 2015, the College of Arts and Sciences' Outstanding Teacher Award, where she was selected out of a pool of over 800 faculty. A recent review of her work states, "[t]he choir sings with great musicality, excellent intonation, clear diction, and a healthy and beautiful pallet of tone colors..." (The Choral Scholar). In May of 2017, the University Singers won first place in the renowned Marktoberdorf International Chamber Choir Competition while on a concert tour of Austria and Bavaria. In May of 2013, the University Singers placed second overall in La Florilège Vocal de Tours and Dr. Joseph was honored with the Prix du chef de choer (conducting prize). Deanna Joseph holds conducting degrees from the Eastman School of Music, where she was awarded the Walter Hagen Conducting Prize. She is the founder and co-artistic director of the Atlanta Summer Conducting Institute, a weeklong summer conducting master class that draws conductors nationally.

The international award-winning Georgia State University Singers is the School of Music's premier vocal ensemble. Selected by competitive audition, the choir represents the diverse population of Georgia State University. In May of 2017, the University Singers won first place in the renowned Marktoberdorf International Chamber Choir Competition during a tour of Austria and Germany. The choir's first professional recording, Evening Hymn (Gothic Records), has been featured several times on NPR's program, With Heart and Voice. The ensemble regularly appears at professional choral conferences and enjoys frequent collaborations with the Atlanta Ballet, the Atlanta Opera, and the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra.

Univ of Louisville Collegiate Chorale

Kent Hatteberg

Kent Hatteberg is Director of Choral Activities at the University of Louisville, where he conducts the Collegiate Chorale and Cardinal Singers, administrates the master's program in choral conducting, and teaches graduate and undergraduate conducting and literature courses. He received the Bachelor of Music degree in piano and voice summa cum laude from the University of Dubuque and the master's and doctorate in choral conducting from The University of Iowa, where he studied conducting with Don V Moses and conducted the renowned Old Gold Singers. Named a Fulbright Scholar in 1990, Dr. Hatteberg pursued research on the early works of Felix Mendelssohn in Berlin. He conducted the premier of Mendelssohn's Gloria for chorus and orchestra in 1997. Dr. Hatteberg is active nationally and internationally as a guest-conductor, clinician, and adjudicator, most recently in Korea, China, the Philippines, Poland, Spain, Austria, and Hungary. He was a guest conductor with the Nederlands Kamerkoor in 1992 and 1993. He founded the Louisville Chamber Choir in 2013 and conducts annual performances of Handel's Messiah with the Louisville Orchestra and Louisville Chamber Choir. He has conducted numerous All-States and Honor Choirs in the United States. He serves as Chorus Master for the Louisville Orchestra.

The University of Louisville Collegiate Chorale performs primarily a cappella repertoire, with a particular emphasis on the performance of contemporary works. They have appeared at regional or national ACDA, MENC, and National Orff-Schulwerk Association conventions in 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2005, 2008, 2009, and 2011. They performed a program of Baltic choral music at the 2008 NCCO Convention in Cincinnati. They performed at the 2001 Inauguration of President George W. Bush. The Chorale also collaborates regularly with the Louisville Orchestra. Recent performances include Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 (2019, 2014), Mozart's Requiem (2018), "Bernstein at 100" (2018), Michael Gordon's Natural History (2018), Holst's Planets and Debussy's Nocturnes (2018), "War and Peace" (2018), Mahler's Symphony No. 2 (2016), Bernstein's Mass (2015), and Orff's Carmina Burana (2014).

Choral Repertoire from Latin American Countries of the 20th and 21st Centuries

History, Composers, Style, and Interpretation

See page 13 for more about NCCO8 Featured Artist María Guinand. María Guinand appears courtesy of Perform International.

Choral Repertoire from Latin American Countries of the 20th and 21st Centuries emphasizes the history of choral music in Latin America. Prof. Guinand will address the different styles of choral composition in the 20th and 21st centuries as well as the most relevant composers and selected examples of their works. She will also address aspects of interpretation as related to the example works. The talk specifically focuses on the the nations with the most substantial choral development: Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Cuba, Chile, Mexico, and Venezuela.

Innovation with a Social Conscience in the Music of Melissa Dunphy

Composer Melissa Dunphy has become an important voice in choral music, with commissions and frequent performances both nationally and internationally. Dunphy's vocal music is her forte; it is always beautifully and singably written, sets unique and often political texts in ways that highlight both their messages and their artistic expression, and possesses a dramatic arc that engages performers and audiences in ways that are both intellectual and visceral. In this literature session. conductor Katherine FitzGibbon and composer Melissa Dunphy will engage in a dialogue about six of Dunphy's works. FitzGibbon and Dunphy collaborated this spring (2019) on a commission for FitzGibbon's Resonance Ensemble, resulting a powerful new treble work called LISTEN which set the Senate testimony of Anita Hill and Christine Blasey Ford to music. They will discuss each work (also including American DREAMers, What Do You Think I Fought for at Omaha Beach?, O Oriens, Wild Embers, and Lola Ridge Songs) and play or read through excerpts, with FitzGibbon providing commentary from the conductor's perspective about considerations (both musical and political/ social) for rehearsal, education, community outreach, and performance; and Dunphy describing each work's inspiration, structure, and process. Scores will be provided.

Katherine FitzGibbon

Katherine FitzGibbon is associate professor and director of choral activities at Lewis & Clark College. In 2014, she won the Lorry Lokey Faculty Excellence Award, honoring "inspired teaching, rigorous scholarship, demonstrated leadership, and creative accomplishments." She has conducted choirs at Harvard, Boston, Cornell, and Clark Universities, and at the University of Michigan. In June, Chorus America awarded FitzGibbon the Louis Botto Award for Innovative Action and Entrepreneurial Zeal in recognition of her work with Resonance Ensemble. Chorus America's press release noted, "As founder and artistic director of Resonance Ensemble, FitzGibbon has captained a bold organizational shift-from its original mission exploring links between music, art, poetry, and theatre, to a new focus exclusively on presenting concerts that promote meaningful social change." Dr. FitzGibbon is a board member of NCCO and her choirs have performed at the NCCO, ACDA, and OMEA conferences. She holds degrees from Princeton University, the University of Michigan, and Boston University.

Melissa Dunphy

Born and raised in Australia, Melissa Dunphy immigrated to the United States in 2003 and has since become an award-winning and acclaimed composer specializing in vocal, political, and theatrical music. She first came to national attention in 2009 when her large-scale choral work The Gonzales Cantata was featured in The Wall Street Journal, The Atlantic, Harper's Magazine, National Review, Comedy Central, and on Fox News and MSNBC's The Rachel Maddow Show.

Dunphy's first song cycle Tesla's Pigeon has been recognized with several awards. Her choral work What do you think I fought for at Omaha Beach? won the Simon Carrington Chamber Singers Composition Competition and has been performed around the country by ensembles including Chanticleer, Cantus, and the St. Louis Chamber Chorus. Dunphy holds degrees from the University of Pennsylvania and West Chester University, and is a lecturer at Rutgers University.

Peruvian Choral Music

A New and Diverse Repertoire

Choral composition in Peru spans more than five centuries, but Peruvian choral music is little known outside Latin America. Most of this music remains unpublished and inaccessible to North American musicians. Conductors and scholars seeking novel and culturally diverse repertoire will find worthwhile and distinctive options among the works of Peruvian composers. This presentation introduces a selection of works that exemplify three portions of this repertoire: Colonial, Modern, and Indigenous based, with a focus on the works of modern composers. In addition to new repertoire, this session will suggest areas for further scholarship.

Richard Williamson

Richard Williamson is professor of music and director of choral activities at Anderson University in Anderson, South Carolina. Williamson's choirs have performed on four continents and in such major venues as the Piccolo Spoleto Festival, Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Washington National Cathedral, and Carnegie Hall. His professional recognitions include a Fulbright fellowship and AU's Boles Award for Excellence in Teaching. He has published compositions with various firms, presented at numerous conferences, and published articles in Choral Journal, Teaching Music, and others. Williamson has also taught music in the public schools and served as a church musician.

Beyond Elijah Rock

The Non-Idiomatic Choral Music of Black Composers

Many of our choral ensembles and choral literature courses lack informed representation of non-idiomatic choral music of black composers. In this session, we will explore the various forms of this specialized music from black composers including part songs, motets, cantatas, and oratorios. Some of the works may have the influence of idiomatic music such as spirituals, gospel, and jazz but are not intended as works in those styles. Available resources will include a list of black composers who are writing or have written in this style and additional songs available through various publishers.

Marques L. A. Garrett

A Virginia native, Marques L. A. Garrett is an assistant professor of music at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in the Glenn Korff School of Music. He earned his PhD in Music Education (Choral Conducting) at Florida State University. An active conductor, Dr. Garrett has served as a guest conductor or clinician with several church, community, and collegiate choirs throughout the country and served as the festival conductor for the Harry T. Burleigh Spirituals Festival at Tennessee State University. A versatile voice that performs both as a baritone and countertenor, Dr. Garrett has sung with several community, church, and university groups as both a chorister and soloist. He was the baritone soloist for the Germantown Concert Chorus's performance of Haydn's Missa in Augustiis and the countertenor soloist in the European premiere of Dan Forrest's Jubilate Deo in Limerick, Ireland. Dr. Garrett is an avid composer of choral and solo-vocal music whose compositions have been performed to acclaim by high school all-state, collegiate, and professional choirs including the Santa Fe Desert Chorale and Seraphic Fire. GIA Publications, Walton Music, Santa Barbara Music Publishing, and others have published several of his compositions.

Maestras of Masterworks

Jami Lercher

Jami Lercher is a third-year doctoral student in choral conducting at the Frost School of Music, University of Miami. At Frost, Jami has served as the graduate teaching assistant for Women's Chorale and Undergraduate Conducting, and has studied under Dr. Karen Kennedy and Dr. Amanda Quist. Jami also serves as the artistic director of the South Florida Jewish Chorale. Originally from the Midwest, Jami received the Bachelor of Music Education degree from Iowa State University under Dr. James Rodde. She received the Master of Music degree at the University of Wales, Bangor, through a Rotary Foundation Ambassadorial Scholarship. Prior to her doctoral studies, Jami taught high school choral music for twelve years at Roseville Area High School, a suburb of Minneapolis/ St. Paul. She sang with the Minnesota Chorale for eight seasons, and was active in ACDA-MN as the 9-10 Grade SSAA Honor Choir co-chair.

Choral conductors are showing an increased interest in programming music by women as we embrace the desire for balanced representation in choral repertoire. Yet, a recent study by National Public Radio shows that only 2% of music featured on major concert stages is by women. This session explores the lives and music of remarkable women from the last 1.000 years who composed multi-movement masterworks for choir. From the notorious British suffragist, Dame Ethel Smyth (1858-1944), to the world-traveling Venezuelan phenomenon, Teresa Carreno (1853-1917), fascinating stories exist about women who defied expectations and crafted significant works for choirs. Repertoire for treble, bass, and mixed ensembles is available, along with instrumentation options ranging from a cappella works to those involving full orchestral accompaniments. Learn where to find these often overlooked gems and leave with a database with dozens of suggestions for major works by women. Celebrate the maestras of masterworks and discover brilliant music that will dazzle choristers and audiences alike.

Beating the Odds

Helping Students from Underserved Backgrounds Survive and Thrive as Collegiate Music Majors

Dwindling funding and teacher shortages throughout the United States disproportionately affect school districts serving minority populations, perpetuating a lack of minority access and representation within the field of Western classical music. Higher education institutions are poised to reverse this trend by admitting such students and creating a scaffolding system to help them succeed at the collegiate level. The presenters discuss how they have found success overcoming these challenges through a two-pronged approach. In the classroom, Dr. Jorgensen will discuss reimagining curricula and instructional techniques to both introduce and reinforce basic concepts without sacrificing introduction of the advanced content required of college-level music majors. Outside of the classroom, Dr. Christi McLain will introduce how her experience working in a competitive NCAA Division I football program has helped her develop an infrastructure in which at-risk music students can develop the discipline and organization required to function in a collegiate music program. Together, this divided approach has allowed for at-risk students entering college not only fill in the gaps of their education missed during their primary and secondary education, but also develop the skills and knowledge traditionally expected for college graduates to succeed in music.

Christi McLain

Soprano Christi McLain currently serves as coordinator of vocal studies and community music program director at Coker University. As a performer, she has performed with organizations throughout the United States, Germany, Austria, Ireland, and Luxembourg. Recent appearances include Nancy Meneely in the new American oratorio Letter from Italy, 1944, the world premiere of Ellen Gilson Voth's Owl Moon, Mary Warren in Ward's The Crucible, Laetitia in Menotti's The Old Maid and the Thief, Eva Delvingné in Dan Shore's An Embarrassing Position, Marianne in Der Rosenkavalier, and soprano soloist in Fauré's Requiem, Dvořák's Te Deum, and Schubert's Mass in G. Solo credits include work with the Phoenix Symphony, the Hartford Symphony and Chorale, the Masterworks Choir of Florence (South Carolina), Opera Theater of Connecticut, Hartford Opera Theater, Connecticut Lyric Opera, Connecticut Concert Opera, and the Farmington Valley Symphony Orchestra.

Jerron Jorgensen

Tenor Jerron Jorgensen currently serves as director of choral activities and music education coordinator at Coker University in Hartsville, South Carolina. Jerron has worked as a soloist with opera companies and orchestras in both the United States and abroad, and specializes in contemporary works, oratorio, and buffo tenor roles. As a chorister, he has performed with numerous professional choirs including GRAM-MY®-nominated True Concord Voices & Orchestra in Tucson, and the Taylor Festival Choir of Charleston. On the podium, Jerron recently conducted Coker Opera's production of Lucinda y las Flores de la Nochebuena by Evan Mack and Joel Thompson's Seven Last Words of the Unarmed with the Coker Singers. Jerron holds a Doctor of Musical Arts degree in Voice Performance from The Hartt School, University of Hartford; a Master of Music in Voice Performance from Arizona State University; and a Bachelor of Arts in Voice from South Dakota State University.

Jono Palmer

Jono Palmer is a dynamic and enterprising young conductor from Auckland, New Zealand. He is currently a doctoral student in choral Conducting at Indiana University's Jacobs School of Music, and works as an associate instructor for the Choral Department. He maintains a link to New Zealand in his work as artistic programme coordinator for Choral Connect, the NZCF Association of Choral Director's National Conference, and as a part-time high school teacher. His choirs have won national and international acclaim, including two Gold Medals at the 2015 Grand Prix of Nations in Magdeburg, Germany, and many awards at regional and national festivals of NZCF The Big Sing. As a conductor, Jono has been selected for masterclasses at the 2017 World Symposium of Choral Music and the 2017 NCCO National Conference. In October 2018, he competed as one of six finalists in the Grand Final of the inaugural London International Choral Conducting Competition. Jono has a MM in Choral Conducting from Indiana University, a BMus(hons) in Performance Voice, and a BA in Ancient History from the University of Auckland. In 2012, he was awarded the Conductor's Development Prize at the Auckland Regional Big Sing Festival.

The performance of traditional Māori music has been of interest to Western audiences since the middle of the 19th century. Since this time, Western performers and composers have frequently appropriated indigenous elements, including texts, melodies, and rhythms, into their music; in most cases with little understanding of the original ritual or social contexts. At the centre of any Western presentation of Māori music is the need to develop close, equitable, and reciprocal relationships with Māori composers, or their whanau (extended family). With the rising interest of indigenous cultures in choral music, Western conductors and composers need to carefully consider how they engage with both traditional Māori music as well as Māori-inspired Western works. At the forefront of our thinking when choosing whether to perform these works should be the question, 'who does this music benefit?' This presentation will give some background to the Māori musical tradition, the presenters own personal experience with Māori music, and some thoughts about how to approach performing this music with integrity and respect.

The NCCO Choral Series

Elizabeth Swanson, Acting Chief Editor of Publications Matthew Ferrell, Associate Editor

Published by our industry partner, the ECS Publishing Group, the NCCO Choral Series features repertoire appropriate for collegiate ensembles at varying levels of difficulty. Distribution in the Series remains an exclusive honor as works are selected for publication following a rigorous review process by a panel of practicing collegiate choral conductors and composers. Special thanks to Mark Lawson, president of ECS Publishing Group, for his support of this initiative.

Caron Daley

Caron Daley is director of choral activities, assistant professor of music and ensembles coordinator at the Mary Pappert School of Music at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. A native of Halifax, Nova Scotia, Caron founded the Halifax Choral Conducting Institute in 2013, a summer training program that attracts conductors from across North America. In 2019, the HCCI inaugurated a Women's Conducting Institute, the first of its kind in Canada. A certified Dalcroze Eurhythmics teacher, Caron frequently lectures on the sound-gesture relationship in choral conducting, and is published in Anacrusis, Canadian Music Educator, Research Memorandum Series of Chorus America, Teaching Music through Performance in Choir (Vol. 4 and Vol. 5), and Choral Journal. Her current research study examines the use of manual mimicry gestures in the teaching and learning of German speech sounds for singing. Caron holds a D.M.A. (Choral Conducting) from the University of Toronto, an M.M. (Choral Conducting) and M.A. (Vocal Pedagogy) from The Ohio State University, an Artist Diploma (Voice) and B.M. (Music Education) from Western University, and an A.R.C.T (Voice) from the Royal Conservatory of Canada. She currently serves as president of Pennsylvania ACDA.

Univ of Maryland Chamber Singers

HOST CHOIR

Edward Maclary

Edward Maclary is professor of music and director of choral activities at the University of Maryland School of Music. Under his leadership the UMD Chamber Singers have achieved international renown, winning top prizes in competitions around the world and making multiple appearances at ACDA and NCCO conferences. The ensemble has become the ensemble of choice for both the National and Baltimore Symphony Orchestras. Regarded as an outstanding educator, Maclary regularly conducts all-state and honors choirs. He has also been a guest faculty at institutions such as Indiana University, the Eastman School of Music, and Westminster Choir College. Known for his advocacy of early music, he was the director of the Master Class in Conducting at the Oregon Bach Festival. 2014-2017. In 2011 he was named the Chef du Choeur at the Florilège Vocal de Tours, one of Europe's most prestigious choral festivals. Maclary has served as the chorus master for conductors such as Marin Alsop, Christoph Eschenbach, Iván Fischer, Nicholas McGegan, Andris Nelsons, Gianandrea Noseda, Robert Shaw, and Masaaki Suzuki, among others. Edward Maclary holds graduate degrees from Indiana University and Boston University. He subsequently studied under and collaborated closely with Robert Shaw, Margaret Hillis, and Helmuth Rilling.

The internationally renowned UMD Chamber Singers specialize in repertoire from the Renaissance, Baroque, and Contemporary periods. The Washington Post has described their singing as "...dazzling... impeccable... and reverberantly alive." The ensemble has toured the globe and sung by invitation for the American Choral Directors Association, the National Collegiate Choral Organization, and the International Federation for Choral Music. Celebrating their twentieth season under the direction of founder and music director, Edward Maclary, the UMD Chamber Singers will present music in 2019–2020 of Schönberg, Stravinsky, Brahms, Handel, Victoria, and a newly commissioned work by UMD alumna, Dale Trumbore.

The Aeolians of Oakwood Univ

INVITED HEADLINER CHOIR

Jason Max Ferdinand

Jason Max Ferdinand is a Full Professor, Chair of the Music Department, and Director of Choral Activities at Oakwood University where he conducts the Aeolians of Oakwood University. A native of Trinidad & Tobago, Ferdinand received his Bachelor of Arts degree in piano from the Oakwood College (now Oakwood University), the Master of Arts in Choral Conducting from Morgan State University, and the Doctor of Musical Arts in Choral Conducting from the University of Maryland, where he studied with Dr. Edward Maclary. Under Dr. Ferdinand's baton, the Aeolians of Oakwood University have graced stages the world over. Ferdinand maintains an active schedule as a presenter. adjudicator, and guest conductor for high schools, collegiate, and church choirs throughout North America, Europe, and the Caribbean. He is a former board member of the Alabama American Choral Directors Association, and a choral series bearing his name is now in circulation by Walton Music publishers. Dr. Ferdinand was named "Teacher of the Year" for the 2017-18 school year by Oakwood University. He is married to Meka, a registered nurse, and they are the parents of Caleb, Ava, and baby Jamē.

Since their founding in 1946, Aeolians of Oakwood University have traveled widely, touching the hearts of both young and old with their inspirational singing. They have been led since 2008 by former Aeolian Dr. Jason Max Ferdinand who continues their strong tradition of domestic and international tours. Aeolian performances present a repertoire of choral music that ranges from the Baroque era to the twenty-first century. The choir has become an authoritative exponent of Negro spirituals and Work songs, expressing the yearnings of the choir's enslaved forefathers to be free. The Aeolians are an Oakwood treasure, continuing to strive for excellence in bettering lives.

Marcel Tyberg Masses

Music Lost in the Holocaust

Marcel Tyberg was tragically killed at Auschwitz during the Holocaust. Since his life was ended so prematurely, his two Masses for choir and organ represent the entirety of his sacred choral output. In 2016, the South Dakota Chorale performed and recorded these for the first time since Marcel played them himself. This session presents an opportunity to read and hear the music in a new edition of the Messe di Fascile in Fa Maggiore (Easy Mass in F Major) prepared from the manuscripts by Brian A. Schmidt and published by Walton Music/GIA Publications. (scores will be provided). This Mass setting is fit for use as a concert piece or liturgically within the context of a choral Mass. The choral and organ writing is accessible and beautiful certainly within the reach of an average church choir. Tyberg's compositional style is lusciously neo-Romantic-reminiscent of Bruckner and Rheinberger-with melodic and harmonic elements of Jewish music infused occasionally. His settings of these Mass texts range from intimately devotional to broadly expressive and have a genuine impact on the listener.

Brian A. Schmidt

Brian A. Schmidt is associate professor of music at Baylor University and conductor of the Baylor A Cappella Choir and Chamber Singers. There, he leads the graduate choral conducting program, teaching private lessons, literature courses, and graduate conducting recitals. Schmidt is also founder and conductor of the GRAMMY®-nominated South Dakota Chorale, a professional choir based in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Since 2009 he has grown the ensemble's artistic presence through commercial recordings and an international recording contract in 2014 with PENTATONE, a Dutch classical label. Previously Schmidt served at Duke University Chapel where he conducted the Duke Vespers Ensemble and founded several new ventures including the monthly Bach Cantata Series and Cappella Baroque (a professional period-instrument orchestra) along with publishing recordings on the MSR Classics label. His choirs have appeared on Division and National ACDA Conferences and Boston Early Music Festival. He was selected by ACDA to represent America in the International Conductor Exchange Program with Sweden during the fall of 2015. Schmidt graduated from the University of North Texas, where he completed MM and DMA degrees under Jerry McCoy and Richard Sparks, along with early music studies under Lyle Nordstrom and Lenora McCroskey.

Rehearsing Democratically

Empowering Ensembles from Within

Matthew Olson

Matthew J. Olson is director of choral activities at Carleton College and serves as artistic director of Bach Roots Festival (formerly Oratory) as well as assistant conductor of The Singers – MN Choral Artists. As recent Chorusmaster with the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, the Star Tribune hailed that The Singers were "scrupulously prepared" by Olson in a performance of Bach's St. John Passion described as "one of the most satisfying you could ever hope to hear." Recently, he guest conducted Magnum Chorum in performances of Brahms' Requiem, and The Singers in widely acclaimed performances of Joby Talbot's 17-part choral symphony Path of Miracles.

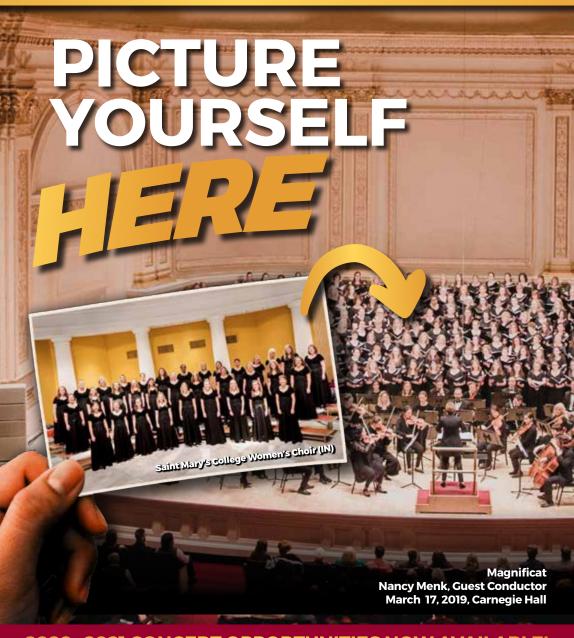

A passionate music educator, he frequently serves as a clinician for high school choral festivals, and his choral compositions and arrangements are published by Colla Voce, Santa Barbara, and via his website. He studied choral and orchestral conducting at St. Olaf College, The Oregon Bach Festival, Michigan State University, The Canford Conducting School (U.K.), and The University of Minnesota.

To many who serve as choral directors, the words democratic and conductor stand comically antonymous. After all, what place does collective bargaining have in a profession requiring efficient autocracy? Yet most Western nations prefer democratic republics for the same cliché reason conductors should; our collective potential is far greater than any single voice alone.

Rehearsing Democratically: Empowering Ensembles from Within is divided into two parts. Part I shares a philosophy on cultivating democratic choral classrooms that addresses fostering inclusivity, vulnerability, purpose, ownership, and worthiness. Part II applies philosophy to pedagogy in a facilitated discussion that assesses common rehearsal methods. Together, we'll look at rehearsal techniques that may be inadvertently constraining the fullest capacities of some singers, while also sharing new practices that enable a more robust and educative investment from all members in the rehearsal process.

About the Performers

Howard University Choir

The Howard University Choir, the resident choir of one of the Nation's pre-eminent African American Universities, gained national and international acclaim under the leadership of former conductor, the late Warner Lawson. Under the leadership of immediate past conductor, J. Weldon Norris, the Choir maintained its tradition of excellence, and expanded its international acclaim through performances in some of the world's major cities, festivals, and venues. Now with new conductor, Eric O. Poole, the Howard University Choir embarks on a choral journey steeped in a legacy of excellence while embracing newer and even broader styles.

Eric Poole, condutor

Dr. Eric Poole serves as an Assistant Professor in the Department of Music and the Director of the Office of University Choirs & Bands wherein he conducts the Howard University Choir, teaches choral conducting, applied voice, and Introduction to Music. Prior to coming to Howard, Dr. Poole conducted university choral groups at North Carolina Central University (Durham, NC), Saint Augustine's University (Raleigh, NC), the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, and at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University (Greensboro). Dr. Poole has led singers in performances at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Constitution Hall, the Naval Observatory, and Washington National Cathedral. Additionally, he has prepared choruses for performances of Gian Carol Menotti's Amahl and the Night Visitors, William Grant Still's And They Lynched Him On A Tree, Allen Menken's Beauty and the Beast, and Franz Liszt's Faust Symphony. Dr. Poole has also served as a choral clinician and conductor in festivals and workshops in North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia and conducted workshops with choruses from California, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, South Carolina, and Utah. Eric earned an undergraduate degree in Music from North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University, a Master of Music degree from Howard University, and the Doctor of Musical Arts degree in Choral Conducting from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Eric, his wife Stephanie, and son Jeremiah live in Arlington, VA.

Towson University Chorale

The Towson University Chorale is an auditioned mixed ensemble that performs a wide variety of choral repertoire from the past six centuries. The Chorale consists primarily of undergraduate music majors from the department of music. In addition to their regular performance schedule at the department of music, the Chorale performs during other Towson University events and is regularly invited to perform around the city of Baltimore. The choir has previously performed under the direction of distinguished conductors Arian Khaefi, Karen Kennedy and Paul Rardin. This past year Diana Sáez was appointed as their new music director.

Diana V. Sáez

Diana V. Sáez is the newly appointed Director of Choral Activities at Towson University in Baltimore where she directs the TU Chorale,

Women's Choir and Choral Society. Before coming to Towson, Sáez was serving as Visiting Choir Director at Knox College in Galesburg, Illinois where she conducted the College Choir and Madrigal Choir. Frequently invited as guest conductor, adjudicator and lecturer in the United States and abroad, she has presented interest sessions at national and regional ACDA conventions as well as in Puerto Rico and Argentina. As a leading specialist in the field of Latin American music, Sáez served as artistic director of Cantigas, a chamber choir that she founded with the mission to increase awareness and appreciation of Latin America and Spanish choral music. Dr. Sáez began her musical education at the Escuela Libre de Música in San Juan, PR. She earned a Master of Choral Conducting from Temple University, and a Doctorate in Musical Arts at the University of Maryland in College

University of Maryland Jazz Ensembles

The University of Maryland Jazz Ensembles perform representative repertoire from the traditional and contemporary jazz lexicon. Frequently compositions and arrangements by University students, faculty, and alumni are featured at performances. Over one hundred students perform in the various ensembles within the jazz area. The Jazz Ensemble frequently performs off campus at a variety of events including the MMEA annual conference, various local jazz festivals, and annually at the UDC Calvin Jones Big Band Jazz Festival as one of the three elite bands invited to perform; this is one of the most anticipated events on Washington D.C.'s jazz calendar and frequently broadcast on the BET Network. Combos and big bands also perform a variety of outreach concerts at regional schools and venues such as the National Archives, D.C. Public Library, and National Building Museum, area schools, and at campus events such as Maryland Day, Gala Events, and commencement activities.

Tim Powell

Currently, the Interim Director of Jazz Studies and Lecturer of Saxophone and the University of Maryland, and Adjunct Professor of Saxophone at Rowan University; saxophonist, Tim Powell, is at home in both concert and jazz idioms. He is an established freelance musician in the Baltimore/Washington Metropolitan area. He has performed with the Baltimore, Alexandria, and Altoona Symphony Orchestras as well as Frank Sinatra Jr., Gloria Gayner, Ben Folds, The Four Freshman, The Temptations, The Four Tops, Frankie Avalon, Ben E King, Mauro Marcondes, Origem, Steve Fidyk, and the Mike Kamuf Little Big Band. He has also helped commission a number of works for the saxophone repertoire by both well-established composers and those new to the field. Tim Powell earned degrees from Penn State University and the University of Maryland, College Park. His teachers have included M. Dan Yoder, Carrie Koffman, David Stambler, Chris Vadala and Dale Underwood. He has previously served on the faculties of Penn State University, Frostburg State University, Montgomery College, and Anne Arundel Community College.

Peabody Conservatory Jazz Studies

Jazz has a long and rich history in Baltimore and at the Peabody Conservatory, where the Jazz Studies Department was founded in 2001. Today, Peabody Jazz emphasizes experiential learning and connects you to a network of active and respected performers, both on the faculty and in the worldwide jazz community. Classroom and studio instruction are augmented with real-world opportunities in a variety of settings and local venues. And your jazz coursework and lessons are part of a curriculum that crosses artistic boundaries and equips you with the skills to navigate today's professional landscape. Guest and visiting artists in recent years have included Alex Brown, Benny Golson, Wycliffe Gordon, and Branford Marsalis.

Sean Jones

Music and spirituality have always been fully intertwined in the artistic vision of trumpeter, bandleader, composer, educator and activist Sean Jones. He is equally adept in being a member of an ensemble as he is at being a bandleader. Sean turned a 6-month stint with the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra into an offer from Wynton Marsalis for a permanent position as lead trumpeter, a post he held from 2004 until 2010. In 2015 Jones was tapped to become a member of the SFJAZZ Collective where he was a member until 2018. During this time, Sean has managed to keep a core group of talented musicians together under his leadership forming the foundation for his groups that have produced and released eight recordings on the Mack Avenue Records, the latest is his 2017 release Sean Jones: Live from the Jazz Bistro. He has also performed with the Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Youngstown Symphony Orchestras as well as Soulful Symphony in Baltimore and in a chamber group at the Salt Bay Chamber Festival. Sean is also an internationally recognized educator. He was recently named the Richard and Elizabeth Case Chair of Jazz at John Hopkins University's Peabody Institute in Baltimore. Before coming to Peabody, Sean served as the Chair of the Brass Department at the Berklee College of Music in Boston.

The All-Conference Party in the Ballroom of The Hotel at the University of Maryland will begin following the concert, from 10:00pm to Midnight.

Conducting Fellowship Masterclass

The officers of NCCO—working with Dr. Craig Arnold and Manhattan Concert Productionsare proud to continue the NCCO Conducting Fellowship Program this year. The program is designed with the following goals:

- 1. To encourage and support graduate students who are on the cusp of a career in academia;
- 2. To provide an opportunity to sharpen conducting technique, score preparation skills, and rehearsals methods in a conducting masterclass with a conference headliner:
- 3. To provide networking opportunities with fellow collegiate choral conductors with the intent to develop mentor/mentee relationships that continue beyond the conference; and
- 4. To encourage graduate student activity at the NCCO National Conference.

Repertoire for today's session will be chosen from among the works below in masterclass with NCCO8 Featured Artist, María Guinand. María Guinand appears courtesy of Perform International, learn more about her on p. 13.

Campaign Announcement

Announcing the William J. Dehning Memorial Summer Opportunity Grant.

The William J. Dehning Memorial Summer Opportunity Grant

As part of NCCO's mission is to "serve the specific needs of university and collegiate choral conductors," the Executive Board has determined that we can assist in meeting that mission by creating and supporting opportunities for undergraduate and graduate students to move from conducting student to conducting professional. While our students receive excellent instruction in our programs, we know that many seek to further their education through summer courses in a variety of areas, including orchestral conducting, score study, music education, composition, and more. With this in mind, NCCO is proud to announce the NCCO William J. Dehning Memorial Summer Opportunity Grant.

Open to graduate students and rising junior/senior undergraduate students in conducting, music education, and related fields, this grant will provide funding to help students afford summer educational opportunities in an area that they deem appropriate for their study. The primary criteria for acceptance will be merit. Through this program, we hope to honor—in perpetuity—Bill Dehning and his lifetime of dedication to conducting students.

Look in the new year at ncco-usa.org for more information about the Campaign to raise money for the Dehning Fund.

Temple University Concert Choir

Praised for "professional musicianship" (Boston Music Intelligencer) and "great skill and glowing voices" (Broad Street Review), the Temple University Concert Choir has enjoyed a reputation for excellence and versatility. The Concert Choir has presented many premiere performances, including Giles Swayne's Our Orphan Souls and Eriks Ešenvalds's Three Teasdale Poems in 2014. The ensemble has performed at three ACDA Eastern Division conferences; at NC-CO's conferences in 2006 and 2015; at NAfME Eastern Division conferences in 2017 and 2019: and in Bernstein's Mass with the Philadelphia Orchestra in 2015, a commercial recording of which was released by Deutsche Grammophon.

The Choral Scholar

The Choral Scholar is a peer-reviewed journal published online by the National Collegiate Choral Organization. Established in 2009, the journal includes outstanding scholarship from multiple disciplines, including choral conducting, musicology, theory, pedagogy, and more. Visit ncco-usa.org/tcs to learn more.

Call for Applications

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS Chief Editor of Publications

RANK Member of the NCCO Executive Board (along with the President, President-Elect, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer)

START DATE AND DURATION 2 year-term, beginning January 1, 2020 and ending December 31, 2021 (with possibility of renewal)

DESCRIPTION

The National Collegiate Choral Organization (NCCO) seeks a Chief Editor of Publications to fulfill two primary responsibilities: First, the Chief Editor serves as the principal editorial manager for our scholarly journal, The Choral Scholar (http://www.ncco-usa. org/tcs/). The Chief Editor is responsible for all editorial content and manages a team of editors to publish one annual volume of the journal. The Chief Editor retains the right to appoint as many editors as they deem appropriate. The Chief Editor is responsible for maintaining the Editorial Board of TCS, which consists of reputable published scholars with interests and expertise in all manners of choral music performance, scholarship, and pedagogy. The Chief Editor is responsible for soliciting scholarly articles for TCS. The Chief Editor serves as a non-voting, ex officio member of the NCCO Executive Board, and reports to the President. The Chief Editor will participate in Executive Board meetings as necessary. Second, the Chief Editor oversees the management and artistic content of the NCCO Choral Music Series in coordination with our publishing partner ECS Publishing. These duties include the selection of new works to coincide with the National Conference. The Chief Editor is responsible for soliciting new scores from composers, as well as appointing a committee from within and outside the membership of NCCO to review works for inclusion in the NCCO Choral Music Series. The Chief Editor works in collaboration with ECS to help prepare the scores for publication and print. The Chief Editor will oversee the Poster Session and Choral Series Session at the national conference as requested by the board.

NOMINATIONS

Individuals may nominate colleagues they deem appropriate for the position. Individuals are also welcome to self-nominate. Nominations are due by November 15, 2019, and the NCCO Executive Board will have a selection made by January 1, 2020. Please send nominations to maferrell@stcloudstate.edu.

Those nominated will be asked to submit the following information:

- Contact information (name, email, phone)
- · Curriculum Vita
- Two examples of scholarly output
- List of three references that can speak to your organizational and communication capacities

About the University of Maryland

The University of Maryland is the state's flagship and one of the nation's preeminent public research universities. A global leader in research and innovation, Maryland enrolls more than 41,000 students, employs more than 14,000 faculty and staff, and offers 286 academic programs. A top producer of Fulbright scholars, the distinguished Maryland faculty includes two Nobel laureates, three Pulitzer Prize winners and 59 members of the national academies. The institution has a nearly $2.2 billion operating budget including more than $545 million annually in external research funding. Maryland is a global leader in the sciences, engineering, business, social sciences, the arts, agriculture and a broad spectrum of applied disciplines. With 12 colleges and schools offering degree programs from the bachelor's through doctoral levels, Maryland is the nation's largest producer of computer science degrees and boasts one of the nation's highest graduation rates across all majors. Located in College Park, seven miles from the United States Capitol, in the suburbs of Washington, D.C., the University of Maryland offers unmatched opportunities to engage with the federal government, elected officials, worldwide embassies, think tanks, the national media and other influencers of public policy. Maryland is a member of the Association of American Universities (AAU), the invitation-only organization that includes North America's most prestigious research universities. The university is a member of Universitas 21 (U21), the network of leading universities on six continents that focuses on global research collaboration, education and exchange, as well as the Association of Public and Land-Grant Universities (APLU) and the Big Ten Academic Alliance (BTAA). The university's teaching, research and innovation mission is evident in its connectivity to the greater Washington region through numerous long-term partnerships in the private and public sectors. Maryland is a sustainable university community committed to becoming carbon-neutral by 2050 and is the nation's first "Do Good Campus" where students, faculty and staff across all disciplines engage in making our community, region, nation and world a better place.

Choral activities at the University of Maryland School of Music encompass the widest possible array of performance opportunities and experiences for the students of the College Park flagship campus. Six full time ensembles explore the riches of the choral literature from ancient times to the present day, from the Western tradition as well as other traditions from around the world. Over the past two decades UMD choirs have earned an international reputation for excellence of performance, creativity of programming, and as a training ground for the next generation of top tier choral professionals. The UMD Chamber Singers are recognized as one of America's leading collegiate choral ensembles and the UMD Concert Choir has become the ensemble of choice for both the National Symphony Orchestra and the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra. The students, faculty, and staff of the UMD School of Music are honored to serve as the hosts for the 2019 National Collegiate Choral Organization Conference.

Classical Movements, winner of the BCA10 Award from Americans for the Arts, is the premier concert tour company for the world's great orchestras and choirs, creating meaningful cultural experiences through music in 145 countries. Producer of two international choral festivals—Serenade! in Washington, D.C. and Ihlombe! in South Africa—and the Prague Summer Nights: Young Artists Music Festival, through our Eric Daniel Helms New Music Program, we've commissioned over 50 works from Pulitzer, MacArthur, and Grammy-winning composers. Since our founding in 1992 as a truly global company, Classical Movements remains committed to facilitating cultural diplomacy across the world.

ECS Publishing Group

Supporting the Composer Fellowship Program Publishing the NCCO Choral Series

Formed in 2014, ECS Publishing Group is the corporate parent of E. C. Schirmer, Galaxy, and MorningStar. Publications span all genres of classical and sacred music, with a specialty in choral music. Galaxy Music was founded in 1930. The firm took on a more educational focus. New agreements with overseas publishers gave access to the music of composers like Vaughan Williams, Delius, and Gordon Jacob. Galaxy composers soon included K. K. Davis, Ivan Galamian, George Rochberg, Alice Parker, Donald Waxman, and Robert Ward. In 1989, Galaxy was sold to E. C. Schirmer Music Company, an enterprise with similar scope and history.

Manhattan Concert Productions

Supporting the MCP Conductor Fellowship Program & Conducting Masterclass

Manhattan Concert Productions—led by educated artists and performing musicians who have choral, instrumental, and theater expertise—provides performance opportunities to qualified ensembles in some of the world's most renowned concert venues, like Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center. MCP works with an exceptional guest faculty that leads masterwork and octavo festival chorus performances, a Symphonic Series for concert bands and orchestras, a Youth Choir Series, the annual New York City Jazz Festival, and a critically-acclaimed Broadway Series. In conjunction with MCP's performance opportunities, they host two professional ensembles-in residence: Manhattan Chorale and the New York City Chamber Orchestra.
